UAW INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE BOARD APPOINTS RORY GAMBLE PRESIDENT

DETROIT - The UAW International Executive Board met Thursday and named Acting President Rory Gamble to fill the vacancy of President until the June 2022 Convention.

"This is an honor to complete my career and serve the members of this great union in this capacity," said Gamble. "This wasn't planned and it is a tall order. There are difficult decisions that will need to be made in the coming months for our members. But I promise one thing, when I retire and turn over this office, we will deliver a clean union on solid footing."

Gamble, 64, spent 12 years as Director of Region 1A before being elected Vice President and appointed to head the Ford Department in 2018.

In his initial three weeks, Gamble moved swiftly as Acting President, coalescing the IEB around a series of ethics reforms, including appointing an outside Chief Ethics Office; an internal ombudsman; policy changes; a claw-back provision to recover misspent money; new financial controls including auditing and identifying and implementing stronger financial management practices.

"Together, our members, local leaders and our Board have an opportunity to set the UAW on a course for generations," said Gamble. "There are many opportunities through new technology; new jobs; new organizing drives and collective bargaining gains to lift up our families, our communities and the middle class. We are in this together as we work through these changes and challenges."

The IEB will fill Gamble's Vice President vacancy in January.

The IEB also currently has a regional director vacancy in UAW Region 5. Regional Director vacancies are filled by the delegates elected by members within that region. Region 5 will call a delegate meeting in the coming weeks to fill that vacancy.
